

To make a good impression at a job interview, you should prepare for the interview ahead of time. First, assess your skills. Be candid with yourself when identifying your strengths and weaknesses. Second, learn as much about the employer as you can. Think about how your abilities would contribute to the organization. Third, prepare a list of questions about the position. Do not ask about salary at this point.

After the interview, write a thank you note to the person who conducted the interview. In addition to being good manners, it reminds the interviewer who you are and sets you apart from the other candidates.
