

Photo courtesy of Jayne Flores, Guam Community College

Presentation: Guam Community College students Fanny Muna, left, and Jennifer Umagat were two of nearly 60 people that crowded into the Allied Health Center Lecture Hall I at GCC on Wednesday to listen to the "Know Your Role! Know Your Rights: Local Lessons from the Civil Rights Movement" presentation sponsored by GCC's Center for Civic Engagement.

GCC presents local film at celebration

Pacific Daily News

It was a belated recognition, but a celebration of service nonetheless.

The Guam Community College's Center for Civic Engagement on Wednesday commemorated the Martin Luther King Jr. holiday with a presentation highlighting the legacy of the American Civil Rights Movement of the 1960 and how it relates to modern day efforts for equal rights, according to a press release from the Guam Community College.

The program included a screening of "Sway," local student independent film about how the Chamorro culture is caught in a struggle between sticking to age-old traditions while coping with modern influences, said assistant director of communications and promotions Jayne Flores.