GUAM

Insular Area Summary for Guam

Political Status

Guam became a U.S. territory in 1898 and placed under the jurisdiction of the U.S. Navy. The Guam Organic Act of 1950 conferred U.S. citizenship on Guamanians and established the territory's government. The Act also transferred Federal jurisdiction over Guam from the U.S. Navy to the Department of the Interior. First elections were held in 1970.

U.S. Military on Guam

Guam, which is often described as at the "tip of the spear," is the forward most U.S. territory in the Western Pacific. Located only hours by air or a few days by sea from strategic interests such as Japan, the Korean peninsula, and China, Guam is critical to America's defense posture in the Asia/Western-Pacific region. Guam is currently home to a large U.S. military presence which includes Navy and Air Force bases, comprising nearly 27% of the island's land mass.

The Department of Defense (DoD) plans to relocate 8,600 Marines and approximately 9,000 dependents from Okinawa to Guam with an initial estimated cost of $10.27 billion. The current Guam population is approximately 178,000. It is estimated that up to 20,000 temporary workers may be needed to complete the required construction. At the completion of the relocation approximately 6,000 civilian workers will be added to the island's population. The government of Guam is concerned that this rapid population increase will place an unsustainable burden on its infrastructure.

The Administration will continue to move forward with a "One Guam" approach to address the needs of Guam associated with the military build-up. A Civilian-Military Coordination Council (CMCC) has been established which will assist DoD in implementing Adaptive Program Management, whereby DoD will monitor the buildup and adjust the construction pace if it unduly impacts the environment and/or the infrastructure.

Many new construction jobs will be created during the build-up years. Priority will be given to U.S. workers before the hiring of foreign labor. Public Law 110-229 provides that Guam can import foreign labor without limit until 2014.

Major funding for the build-up effort is being contributed by DOD, USDA and the Government of Japan.
