

EN97-1

Persuasive Essay Outline

Dec 02,2020

Should Students Attend College

I. Introduction

Hook: Why should we go to college?

Thesis statement: Students should go to college because college can improve students' knowledge and academic qualifications, exercise student's communication skills in advance, and college can provide a college degree that can improve students' employability.

Argument#1: College can improve our knowledge and academic qualifications.

Argument#2: College can exercise our communication skills in advance.

Argument#3: College can provide a college degree that can improve students' employability.

II. College can improve students' knowledge and academic qualifications.

A. Students will receive higher education.

B. After going to college, students will get a diploma.

III. College can exercise our communication skills in advance.

A. College is equivalent to a small society.

B. They can learn how to deal with the complicated interpersonal relationship around.

IV. College can provide a college degree that can improve students' employability.

A. Going to college make us have more skill, so they have more choices.

B. Higher salary.

V. Conclusion

Restate thesis statement: The positive effect of attending to a college is greater than the negatives.

Restate three arguments: College provides more information, train students' communication abilities and also provides degrees for more job opportunities.

Clincher: Of course, the benefits of going to college are far more than these, there are many more. So, don't think it's unnecessary to go to college.

EN97-1

Persuasive Essay Final Draft

Dec 02,2020

Should Students Attend College

Whenever school starts, there will always have a group of people asking should students attend college or not. Students should go to college because college can improve students' knowledge and academic qualifications, exercise student's communication skills in advance, and college can provide a college degree that improve students' employability.

First, college can improve students' knowledge and academic qualifications. College can naturally allow students to learn more knowledge, after all, after arriving at the college, students will receive a higher education. After graduating from college, the gap between them and those who have not studied at college will gradually manifest. There is also that after going to college, students will be award a diploma, which is a steppingstone for them future work.

Second, college can exercise student's communication skills in advance. Many people say that a college is a small society, and they will learn a lot in the college society. Among them, the ability of interpersonal communication is the very practical ability they learned during college. Through some activities in clubs and classes, students can learn how to deal with the complex interpersonal relationships around ourselves, which is very practical for them.

Finally, College can provide a college degree that can improve students' employability. The level of education is not equal to the level of achievement. But when you first get employed, your academic qualifications determine the scope and level of work you can generally engage in. Different educational backgrounds have different levels of work and wages for the first employment. Of course, there are overlapping levels. The annual salary survey also shows that the average salary of people with high education is higher than that of people with low education. Many people argued that “Instead of attending college, the time can be spend learning more social experience which will bring in more benefits than spending your time in college.” Indeed, social experience is very important for teenagers, however social experience also can be earned during college academic by having a part time job.

In conclusion, the positive effect of attending to a college is greater than the negatives. College provides more information, train students’ communication abilities and also provides degrees for more job opportunities. Of course, the benefits of going to college are far more than these, there are many more. So, don’t think it’s unnecessary to go to college.